PREMESSA

Il mondo dell'Internet è vasto e complesso, composto da molteplici strati.

Due concetti che spesso suscitano curiosità e timori sono il Deep Web e il Dark Web.

In questa relazione, esploreremo le definizioni di entrambi e le loro differenze, fornendo informazioni su come difendersi dalle potenziali minacce presenti in questi ambienti digitali.

IS EVERYTHING CLEAR?

DEEP WEB

Il Deep Web rappresenta la parte non indicizzata dei contenuti su Internet da parte dei motori di ricerca convenzionali.

Include una vasta gamma di risorse online che richiedono un'autenticazione o un accesso specifico, quali database aziendali, archivi di ricerca accademica, e contenuti governativi non pubblici. In sostanza, costituisce una componente significativa del panorama digitale ma è accessibile solo tramite specifiche autorizzazioni.

DARK WEB

Il Dark Web è una sottosezione del Deep Web caratterizzata da una forte anonimizzazione e non accessibile tramite browser standard. Per accedervi, gli utenti devono ricorrere a reti anonime come Tor, che mascherano l'identità dell'utente.

Il Dark Web è noto per ospitare attività illecite, tra cui mercati illegali, forum di hacking, e altre transazioni illegali.

IS EVERYTHING CLEAR?

Le principali distinzioni tra il Deep Web e il Dark Web possono essere così riassunte:

ACCESSIBILITA'

Mentre il Deep Web è accessibile attraverso Internet tradizionale, richiedendo spesso autorizzazioni specifiche per il suo utilizzo, il Dark Web richiede l'impiego di software di anonimizzazione per l'accesso e non è accessibile tramite mezzi convenzionali.

CONTENUTO

Il Deep Web ospita principalmente contenuti legali e riservati, spesso protetti da password o altre forme di autenticazione. Al contrario, il Dark Web è noto per essere un terreno fertile per attività illegali, quali vendita di droghe, armi, informazioni personali rubate, e servizi di hacking.

Uno dei tool più utilizzati per la ricerca nel DarkWeb è DarkDump.

Darkdump è un semplice script scritto in Python3 in cui consente agli utenti di inserire un termine di ricerca (query) nella riga di comando e darkdump estrarrà tutti i siti web profondi relativi a quella query.

BOTNET

Le botnet, o reti di bot, sono collezioni di dispositivi internet connessi, i quali sono stati infettati e controllati da malware, spesso senza la consapevolezza dei loro proprietari.

Un singolo attaccante o un gruppo organizzato, noto come "botmaster", può comandare e controllare questi dispositivi infetti, chiamati "bot", per eseguire azioni malevoli su larga scala.
